STATE ORATORICAL CONTEST ON MAY 9

Finals for Eastern Pennsylvania to Be Conducted At U. of P.

SEEK A NAT'L ENTRANT

High school pupils throughout Eastern Pennsylvania are studying the Constitution of the United States, in preparation for the national oratorical contest, the State contest of which will be held in the University of Pennsylvania May 9th.

The contest is being sponsored by Eastern Pennsylvania this year by the Pennsylvania Forensic League. The winner of the State contest will represent Pennsylvania at the national zone finals in Pittsburgh May 16, at which meeting the orator to represent the Eastern part of the United States at the national finals will be chosen.

There will be a series of elimination contests, which will begin in the schools. The school orators will compete in county contests, all of which must be held by April 12, and the various county winners then will compete in section contests, which will be held before April 26. The various section winners will compete in the State contest in Philadelphia.

The speeches are limited to six minutes, but at the conclusion of the six-minute speech in the zone and national finals, each contestant will be required to talk extemporaneously for four minutes. The judges will consider both the prepared address and the extemporaneous speech.

The topics for the extemporaneous speeches will deal with some additional phases of the prepared speech. In selecting topics the plan is to test the breadth and genuineness of the speaker's understanding of the subject of his prepared speech by compelling a development of new or untouched phases thereof.

Orators may select any of the following subjects:

The Constitution in the Daily Life of the Individual.

Personalities in the Constitutional Convention.

The Value of Political Parties in the Functioning of the Constitution.

Advantages of a Rigid Over a Flexible Constitution for the American People.

Origins of the Constitution.

The Constitution, a Guarantee of the Liberty of the Individual.

The Citizen, His Privileges and His Duties Under the Constitution.

The Expansion of Federal Power Since the Civil War.

The Influence of the Doctrine of Implied Powers as Enumerated in the McCulloch vs. Maryland Decision.

INDIFFERENCE IS MAINTAINED BY IRENE SCHROEDER

Alleged Slayer Commences Sixth Day of Trial In New Sastle

IS AGAIN IDENTIFIED

Clothes of Murdered One Exhibited Before The Court

By Paul Glynn

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

COURTROOM, NEW CASTLE, Pa., Mar. 15.—Maintaining the same sullen indifference that has characterized her every action since the trial began, Irene Schroeder today began the sixth day of her fight to "beat the rap" for the slaying of Corporal Paul of the State Highway Patrol.

Observers in the little courtroom were almost unanimous in their opinion that another full day session would be held today. Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand has signified his intention of speeding up the case and already three night sessions have been held.

Testimony of two prosecution witnesses climaxed the all day and night session yesterday.

Mrs. Beryl Miller, restaurant owner of Monaca, testified to a woman, two men and a small boy visiting her establishment on the afternoon of December 27th last. One of the men ordered a dozen sandwiches to be taken out. A bowl of soup was ordered for the child.

The other witness at the close of the night session was E. R. Methudy, St. Louis business man, who identified the bullet-riddled automobile in which the slayers of Paul had ridden as his own. Methudy testified that he had not been in Pennsylvania on the day of the killing.

Irene and Glenn Dague, her alleged lover, were again identified at the opening of the night session, this time by Roy Horton and Elsie Nickum, of New Castle. Horton told how he and Miss Nickum were forced from the car at gunpoint and of Irene, two men and the boy speeding away in the commandeered car.

Today in History.

President Andrew Jackson born, 1767.

APPRECIATION IN POETRY

The "Bard" of the Fathers' Association, in appreciation of the kindness of the teachers in the Bristol Public Schools in furnishing the entertainment at the meeting of the Association held in the high school auditorium Thursday evening, has written the following poetic effusion:

Grace, beauty and bewitching charm
Were all exposed to view
By the teachers of our public schools
In their Hollywood (?) revue;
The men were taken by surprise,
Such a feast they seldom get,
And from the sparks of laughter
They have not recovered yet.

A teacher by the name of Smith,
With slender, girlish lines,
Proceeded from a book to read
Some sad, distressing rhymes.
"The night was cold and stormy,
The wind was howling wide;
Two lovers sat on the parlor couch,
Side by side."

The heroine's name was "Thelma."
She was pretty but somewhat pale,
But she could sing with charming grace,
Like "Florence Nightingale."
She was the kind of girl who could
Set hearts of men aflame,
And if she would two sweethearts have,
Of course, she's not to blame.

But what a sight it was to see,
Those two gay lovers fight
For one was fat, the other thin—
It gave the men a fright.
But no one blamed the heroine,
When she tempted fate and dared;
For the thin one made a pretty boy,
So all the men declared.

But Thelma's mother was a scream,
As she "swept" in the room,
And "whisked" her daughter out again,
With that same helpful broom.
The moon arose, with rapid pace,
And Thelma, too, "turned pale,"
While the "temperature" rose higher still,
As the wind turned to a gale.

But quickly now the scene was changed
A school room came in view,
And little boys and girls were seen,
In numbers not a few.
But Frankie Lehman never did
Such awful form display,
And Valeno V. Vansant was not
A "sissy" in his day.

And Johnnie Hardy never did
Such trousers ever wear,
For no one in his day would think
Of taking such a dare.
And Emil Metzger, who would think,
To call his whiskers red—
"He was a man mit eyes so blue,"
Could shush as well been said.

But all things to an end must come,
Enthrancing though they be,
And Miss Smith with her dainty grace,
Announced the finale.
So the night that was filled with music,
And the cares which infested the day,
Just folded their tents like the Arabs,
And silently stole away.

SCHOOLS AIM TOWARD APPRECIATION OF ART

March 17, 18, 19, 20 Are The Dates Set for Art Exhibits In Bristol Township

A NUMBER OF PRINTS

"Tell me what pictures hang upon his walls and what books are his companions and I will tell you what manner of a man he is," the words of a wise man.

That the school should train for the use and choice of good books is accepted and every school does this obviously, to a greater or less extent. But to be well educated means a many-sided development and the knowledge of Art is one of the prerequisites of modern education.

A number of prints of pictures by well-known masters will be displayed at the art exhibits to be held in the Bristol Township public schools during the next few days.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings the exhibits will be at the Croydon public school; Newport School on Wednesday; and Edgely School on Thursday. The doors will open at 7:30 o'clock.

To be able to recognize a number of good pictures at sight, to describe them, to be familiar with the artists' names, pictures, subjects and style is the aim of art appreciation as studied in the schools today. Joy, in line, form and color was instinctive even in primitive man and this fundamental love of the beautiful can be made a great uplift to the personal character of everyone.

It is expected that the students, parents, and public in general will take advantage of this opportunity made possible through efforts of the supervising principal and board of school directors.

DEDICATE HANDSOME NEW HIGH SCHOOL AT CORNWELLS HEIGHTS FOR PUPILS OF BENSALEM TOWNSHIP DISTRICT

Taxpayers Complimented, Board of Education and Faculty Praised for Efforts to Improve and Put Upon High Plane the School Facilities of the District—Structure is Model of Its Kind and Township Now Takes First Rank for Equipment.

P. O. S. OF A. OF CORNWELLS HTS. PRESENTS FLAG

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 15.—The new Bensalem Township High School and the completion of the $150,000 school building expansion program were dedicated last night with appropriate exercises in the new structure, here. The auditorium was filled to capacity with the overflow crowding the corridors.

The program was a very interesting one and was participated in by pupils, faculty, school board, contractors and visiting school men from various sections. The officials of the schools in adjacent districts were seated in a group upon the platform.

The taxpayers were complimented and the board of education and faculty praised for their untiring efforts to provide for the district school facilities surpassed by but few comparable districts.

Richard W. Fechtenburg was master of ceremonies and in brief and appropriate introductory remarks, following the invocation by the Rev. J. B. D. Cook, pastor of Cornwells Methodist Episcopal Church, and the singing of "America" by the students, outlined the purposes of the gathering.

The building was delivered to the architect by J. Warren May, engineer for W. John Stevens Company, Inc., who were the builders. Mr. May described the building which is of granite and limestone and concrete; steel joists being used thruout.

The key of Completion was presented by Fred Martin of A. Oscar Martin & Son, architects. Mr. Martin, in his remarks, praised the contractors as well as the sub-contractors for the faithful and efficient manner in which they had carried out their part of the program.

The building was accepted for the Board of Education by Andrew J. Reichle, president. Mr. Reichle reviewed the growth of the school system in Bensalem Township and praised those aiding in its development from the time when a high school was first agitated in the district. He told of the submission of the bond issue to the people and the approval which the voters gave it.

J. H. Hoffman, county superintendent of schools, said that he was glad to be present upon this occasion and that he wanted to compliment the school authorities as well as the taxpayers of the district for the completion as well as equipment of such a magnificent structure. "I am glad that the students of Bensalem Township do not have to go elsewhere to get the very best. A community is judged by the attention it shows toward its young people," said the speaker.

A large American flag was presented to the school on behalf of Camp No. 530, P. O. S. of A. of Cornwells, by Herman A. Miller, national secretary of the P. O. S. of A. Mr. Miller's address bristled with patriotism and love of country. He said, "When they build a school house in a community they build the finest fortress ever erected." He scoffed at the idea that communists are rampant in the public schools. He urged loyalty to the flag and to America and he praised the public school system of the United States and called attention to its approaching one hundredth anniversary.

The flag was accepted by President Reichle who in a few words expressed the thanks of the Board of Education for the gift. The audience arose and pledged its allegiance to the emblem.

The exercises were interspersed throughout by selections by the Girls' Choral Club and the Bensalem Township High School Band under the direction of Professor Luigi Valeno. The musical organizations were exceptionally fine. The glee club, the choral club and mixed choruses sang in a most credible manner. The band, composed of both girls and boys, costumed in white and blue, received the plaudits of the audience.

Richard W. Fechtenburg on behalf of the school board, presented Alvin T. Lippincott, a former president and under whose guidance much of the preliminary work for the establishment of the high school was consummated, with a gavel. Mr. Fechtenburg in his speech of presentation called attention to the high esteem in which the former president of the board is held and complimented him for his untiring efforts in behalf of the schools of the district.

The chief speaker of the evening was Harold L. Holbrook, assistant director, Child Helping and Accounting Bureau, specialist in Guidance, Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania. Mr. Holbrook is a magnetic speaker and he took as his topic, "Your Child and His Future." His discourse was attentively listened to and was very instructive.

The high school song by Katherine L. Helfrich, elicited much applause. Miss Helfrich was accompanied by Harold Fitch, class of '30 and composer of the number.

The dedicatory response was given by the audience led by Samuel K. Faust, supervising principal.

The benediction was given by the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, rector of the Christ Episcopal Church of Eddington.

Previous to the exercises one hour was set apart for a general inspection of the building and the viewing of exhibits. These exhibits were of a very credible nature, composed of work done by students in the various schools in Bensalem district.

During the last decade Bensalem Township has been developing what is today one of the finest school systems in Bucks County and Eastern Pennsylvania. Cornwells, being a centrally located point in the school district, was selected as the logical site for the high school.

Land was acquired adjoining school property and planning undertaken in 1920. The Board of Education selected A. Oscar Martin, registered architect, of Doylestown, Pa., who has had years of experience in school house work, to design a building along the lines and scope as established by them. During that year the architect prepared drawings using the existing two-story stone building of two class rooms as a nucleus and developed a progressive planning system of which one unit was constructed in that year, consisting of one class room and one end of the central corridor.

FEWER SALESMEN

Traveling salesmen are vanishing which probably accounts for the decline in number and popularity of traveling salesmen jokes noted of late.

There has been rapid decimation of the drummer ranks in recent years, according to the managing director of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations, and the survivors are authority for the statement that selling "on the road" is becoming increasingly difficult.

This condition can not be blamed on "hard times." One opinion is that modern business demands a new type of traveling salesman, who is an expert on merchandising and capable of seeing problems through the eyes of the buyer, and that he is not being developed fast enough to meet the demand.

Disagreeing with this theory are a number of business executives, who contend that the rising costs of travel and the current policy of small-order buying by retail establishments have sounded the death knell of the high-salaried salesman who makes long trips over the country calling on customers in many states. His place is destined, they contend, to be taken by independent commission salesmen who represent several non-competing lines in a restricted territory.

So we learn that labor-saving machinery is not the only job-annihilator and that business is undergoing so many fundamental changes that the lay mind cannot follow them nor comprehend their significance.

FORWARD MARCH!

Do your buying and your paying now—and do it in Bristol. When you pay a debt here you will see some of the money again in some form; when you make purchases here you will see some of the money again some time. When you pay a debt for make a purchase you add movement to the city's life blood and you help yourself.

As money circulation increases business is more brisk, employment increases. Let's get busy and make Bristol hum with business from now on. Do your share; don't worry about the man next to you. Maybe he is waiting to see what you will do.

CHANCE FOR GOOD CITIZENS TO PROVE THEIR TITLE

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:

Sir: If we were all good citizens much of the present confusion over the Eighteenth Amendment could be ruled out. If the Richman, Poorman, Beggerman and Thief would stay away from the bootleggers and speak-easies which they have created in defiance of the law, there would be little need to complain about enforcement.

Surely an intelligent people can weigh prohibition in the balance and know that the good overshadows the bad; yet in spite of this a loving mother asks for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, so her growing boys can choose for themselves between drunkenness and sobriety. It is peculiar that some original soul hasn't suggested the repeal of all prohibitive laws, to give the young generation a chance to choose for themselves any of the criminal professions now denied them.

I am certain that America cannot afford to withdraw from the stand she has taken, so it remains for us all to become good citizens.

New Fords A Day

This is the production figure for New Fords set by the Ford Motor Company for this spring and summer. Nearly 50% of all the cars to be sold this year will be new Fords. No wonder Ford can give you the greatest value in an automobile. He will build nearly as many cars as all other manufacturers put together. Then he owns his own mines, steel and glass plants, and nearly all sources of raw materials. Nothing but the best goes into these new cars. Let us call and demonstrate, or drop in and see us.

Mahlon Naylor is Honored On Birthday Anniversary

A birthday party was recently given in honor of Mahlon Naylor, of 236 Market street, who was thirteen years old.

The festivities commenced at seven o'clock and the guests had a good time playing various games. Thomas Proff won a prize for the peanut scramble, while Elizabeth Fennimore, Elizabeth Phillips and Norman Kirk were awarded prizes for the donkey game. At about ten o'clock, the boys and girls were invited to the dining room where refreshments were served. The living and dining rooms were attractively decorated in lavender and yellow crepe paper streamers, which were draped from the four corners to the center of the rooms. In the dining room the streamers gracefully hung from the center to the corners of the table. A large birthday cake with thirteen candles formed the centerpiece on the table and favors were yellow snappers.

After wishing Mahlon many more happy birthdays, the guests departed for their homes, after a most enjoyable evening. Those present were:

Anna Swangler, Marie Capella, Mamie Capella, Lillian Holmes, Mary Holmes, Mary Smoyer, Joan Lee, Winifred Flynn, Elizabeth Phillips, Elizabeth Fennimore, Elizabeth Naylor, Edna Naylor, Catherine Caputa, Edith Kline, Theresa Kohler and Gladys Kline, of Bristol, and Ella Pursell, of Croydon.

Howard Kirk, Frank Proff, Mahlon Naylor, Thomas Proff, Walter Chambers, Edward Wallace, Albert Proff, Frank Fennimore, John Vansciver, Charles Capella, Fred Caputa, Robert Ruehl, Joseph Kohler, Charles Kohler, Horace Longstreth, Norman Kirk, Mrs. Myrtle Corning and Mrs. Ada Capella.

Mahlon received many pretty birthday gifts.

BAN JOHNSON SELECTS ATHLETICS TO REPEAT

(Editor's Note: International News Service presents herewith the first of a series of articles by Byron Bancroft ("Ban") Johnson, president of the American League from 1909 to 1927, in which he comments on baseball and sports in general.)

By Ban Johnson

As Told to Tod Bates
I. N. S. Special Correspondent
(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Mar. 15.—The Philadelphia Athletics under the able guidance of Connie Mack, the veteran, are my choice to win the 1930 American League pennant and the world's championship.

Mack's team rates best of the two major leagues because it is the product of a genius in team-building. Mack will again give no little toward the success of the Athletics during the coming season.

The races in both leagues will be close, however, until at least mid-season. I still take a strong interest in the American League and in baseball in general. This is my first experience writing for the papers since I broke in as a cub reporter on the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette long before I entered organized baseball.

One of my first assignments was to interview Colonel Robert Ingersoll, the great lecturer. My city editor gave me 12 questions to ask Ingersoll but Ingersoll at first refused to be interviewed. Finally taking pity on me, he said he would write out his answers by 3 o'clock. It was then nearly noon.

When I returned to his hotel, I was amazed to find that Ingersoll had written in his own hand 3,999 words of clear, concise discussion of the 12 questions.

In 1889 I was sent to John L. Sullivan's training camp in Belfast, N. Y., to report his preparation for fighting Jake Kilrain for the heavyweight title.

The subsequent fight at Richburg, Miss., on July 8, 1889, which I covered for my paper, was the last fight staged in America under the old rules. Kilrain and Sullivan fought 72 rounds on the turf.

That was my last work as a reporter. I quit the newspaper business for organized baseball.

But that experience has always made me understand the work of the sports reporters. There's a lot of difference now in sports writing.

Statistics have become one of the most important parts of sports writing. That is why we can gauge so accurately the outcome of a big sporting event.

On baseball statistics, as well as on personal hunch, I therefore pick the Athletics to repeat.

The Trolleys Make Business

Hundreds of housewives came to Bristol last Wednesday to take advantage of the bargains offered by the progressive merchants.

Most of the shoppers came to town in the trolleys. The demands on the merchants for trolley tickets was proof of this.

The "Dollar Day" was a demonstration of what happens when business men and their local transportation company co-operate. The business men offered special inducements, they notified the public of these inducements, and the trolley company co-operated with them to the fullest extent. The trolley company is glad that it was so important a factor in the success of Dollar Day.

It is only when some special event like this occurs that the everyday, dependable service rendered by the trolley cars attracts attention. Like many other things, trolley service is taken for granted. But, also like other things, such as the water in the well, it is sorely missed when it's gone!

Your trolley service, bringing shoppers to and from the stores, workers to and from the factories, travelers to and from their destinations, is something to be supported and encouraged. It is a vital part of the community, something the community cannot afford to be without.
